Tis not the number of the lines Oa life's fast-filling page; Tis not the pulse's added throbs, Which constitute our age. Some souls are serfs among the free,

While others nobly strive; They stand just where their father's stood; Dead, even while they live! Others, all spirit, heart and sense-

Theirs the mysterious power To live, in thrills of joy or woe, A twelve-month in an hour Seize, then, the minutes as they pass-The woof of life is thought! Warm up the colors, let them glow,

By fire or fancy fraught.

Mr. Jefferson and His Daughter Martha In the superb work now soon to be issued by the Appletons, under the title of "The American Court, or American Society in the days of Washington, by Rufus W. Griswold, we find an interesting letter from Mr. Jefferson to was afterwards married to the Hon. Thomas Mann Randolph, of Tuckahoe, who became Governor of Virginia. Dr. Griswold says of more than seventeen years of age. John Ran-dolph said she was 'the sweetest young crea-ture in Virginia.' Mrs. Adams, to whose care she had been intrusted some time in Paris, refers to her with most affectionate expressions; and Mrs. Smith, the daughter of Mrs. Adams, says, 'delicacy and sensibility are read in her every feature, and her manners are in unison with all that is amiable and lovely. While Miss Jefferson, in 1783, was at school in Philadelphia, boarding with Mrs. Trist, (grandmother of Mr. Nicholas P. Trist, who is now the husband of the grand-daughter of Mr. Jefferson,) her father addressed to her the following letter, which has hitherto never been published, and is very interesting as an illustration of his domestic character, and his views of the education of women:

"ANNAPOLIS, Nov. 28, 1783. "My DEAR PATSY: After four days' journey, arrived here without any accident, and in as good health as when I left Philadelphia. The conviction that you would be more improved in the situation where I have placed you than if still with me, has solaced me on parting with you, which my love for you has rendered a difficult thing. The acquirements which I hope you will make under the tutors I have provided for you, will ren-der you more worthy of my love; and if they cannot increase it, they will prevent its diminution. Consider the good lady who has taken you under her roof, who has undertaken to see that you perform all your exercises, and to admonish you in all those wanderings from what is right, or what is clever, to which your inexperience would expense your consider her. pose you—consider her, I say, as your mother, as the only person to whom, since the loss with which Heaven has been pleased to afflict you, you can now look up; and that her displeasure or disapprobation, on any occasion, will be an immense misfortune, which, should you be so unhappy as to incur by any ungarded act, think no concession too much to regain her good will. With respect to the distribution of your time, the following is what I should approve: From eight to ten practice music; from one to two draw on the day you dance, and write a letter next day; from three to four read French; from four to five exercise your write, &c Communicate this plan to Mrs. Hopkinson; and if she approves of it, pursue it. As long as Mrs. Trist remains in Philadelphia, cultirate her affections. She has been a valuable friend to you, and her good sense and good heart make her valued by all who know her, and by nobody on earth more than me. I expect you will with a bunch of small branches. I saw so you read, what tune you learn, and enclose me old, without a limb bigger than my wrist, your best copy of every lesson in drawing. Write also one letter every week, either to your Aunt Eppes, your Aunt Skipwith, your Aunt Carr, or the little lady from whom I now enclose a letter. and always put the letter you so write under cover and always put the letter you so write under cover to me. Take care that you never spell a word wrong. Always, before you write a word, con sider how it is spelt, and, it you do not remember, turn to a dictionary. It produces great praise to a lady to spell well. I have placed great happiness on seeing you good and accomplished; and no distress which this world can now bring on me would equal that of your disappointing my hopes. If you love me, then, strive to be good under every situation, and to all living creatures, and to acquire those accomplishments which I have put in your power, and which will go far towards ensuring you the warmest love of your affectionate father. Th. Jerrerson.

"P. S. Keep my letters and read them at times that you will always have present in your mind those things that will endear you to me."

An admirable portrait of Miss Jefferson strongly resembles her illustrious father, and justifies the traditional fame of her greaceful beauty.

A Story for the Credulous-A Rock of Gold. The California Chronicle of March 6th, gives the following extract of a letter dated Kern River, February 14:

"I have discovered a rock of gold. I esti-$10,000,000, it might even be! Now, Bob, don't laugh at me. I was desperately wild with joy. I, who had been a dreamer and a poor be able to carry into execution all the darling schemes which have so often brought the ridicule of the stick in-the-muds upon me! I was at last to be able to go home and claim Rosetta, built with the same regard to non-damaged in under the hard conditions claimed by your

"Towards noon I got hungry. I went up the side of the mountain to some pine trees, in the sides of which the squirrels had placed acorns in holes made by woodpeckers in search of worms. I dug out a lot of acorns, carried pepper-grass growing alongside of a spring. I o'clock, studying what I should do. I could not resolve. I then went to my camp about eight as remarkable. I would not convey this idea, the matter. I said I had wounded a buck and was the incident above mentioned a careless some provisions, another revolver, and a pick, the greatest care is exercised, the yards and and shovel, and pan, and went back. About the various buildings being under the dififty yards from the rock was a trail upon which miners passed every day, and I was afraid to work in the day. At night I went to work to cut off a corner of the rock, but I soon broke | night at one o'clock; while the discipline of t the pick so that it was useless. I could find no hands is more efficient, I have heard said by chisel or hammer.

People got suspicious of me. Several followed me. One man found me sitting down not 100 yards from the rock. I got scared. I carried water in my bucket the whole two miles from the stream and made mud with which I washed over the rock. In doing this I had to and a stranger visiting these yards feels comget 27 buckets of water; and just that job alone compelled me to walk 108 miles, and I was a whole week about it, doing a greater por tion of the work at night, and sleeping in the Death of a Remarkable Fire Dog.

Died, in Charlestown, Mass., recently, "Jack Ham," a large and valuable dog, belonging to engine No. 2, of that city. The history of this dog is very interesting and worthy of note. He was one of four dogs owned by a gentleman some years since, who was accustomed to harness them to a little wagon, constructed for the purpose, in which they drew him about the country, a la horse. By some means, about four years ago, he was induced to dispose of this dog to Mr. Ham, living near the No. 2 engine house. In the family of Mr. Ham he made himself useful in a variety of ways, rock ing the cradle, taking the baby out in a little wagon for an airing in pleasant days, &c. The firemen of No. 2 became very fond of him, and won his confidence by feeding him in the engine house and at their tables, till at length he "joined the company," assisted by his well known bark, in spreading the alarm in cases of

The engine house was his home, and he was always the first to sieze the rope and assist in his eldest daughter, addressed to her when she was at school in Philadelphia. This daughter all the celebrations of the company, dressed all the celebrations of the company, dressed in a uniform which the company had made for him; eating crackers and cheese and drinking coffee with as much apparent relish as the best of them. At one time he was, by accident, her:

How they Make Gunpowder. A correspondent of the New York Tribune, in a letter from Wilmington, Delaware, gives the following interesting sketch of the process by which powder is made at the celebrated Mills of Du Pont, in that city:

"Of course, of the details of the business of the Messrs. Du Pont, even if known to me, I could not make mention, unless by their consent; but the process of manufacture is in reality no secret; every book of Chemistry treating of it to some extent. All know that gunpowder is composed of saltpeter, brimstone and charcoal, though but few have any idea of the trouble and labor gone through to have these materials of a proper quality. The salt-peter, as received at the yards has the appearance of dirty coarse salt, filled with a short fibrous matter; by a process of refining, two or three times repeated, it assumes the appearance somewhat of fine table salt, in which state it is fit for the powder-mill. Great care is also taken to have the sulphur pure. But the most labor and fore-thought seem to be necessary in procuring the charcoal, which is all made of the willow and poplar, the former being used for the best kinds of powder. To procure supplies of these woods the proprietors set out yearly, in every nook and corner, trees which are hewn down every three years, and the branches are converted into charcoal. This method of procuring the wood, gives a singular appearance to the country; for in many places alongside the roads or by the streams, may be seen old tree trunks, standing but little higher than a man's head, and topped only banks of the stream, each one containing a mill. They are built of stone on three sides, with heavy walls, strengthened with piers; the other side, facing the stream, is of wood, and the roof also slopes toward the stream. The plan of construction is to lessen the damage from explosions, for should an explosion take place the force would be diverted toward the stream. The mills consist of two heavy iron rollers on wheels, moving in a trough. I saw one pair, each of which weighed 15,000 lbs., about seven tons. The materials being well mixed up, and pulverized in these mills, is moistened, when it is pressed into cakes till it becomes almost as hard as plaster of Paris. These cakes are then broken up into small pieces, and taken to the granulation mill, an operation which, on account of its danger, I was not permitted to see. After granulation, the powder is taken to the glazing mill. Here 600 or 700 pounds are put into a wooden cask, revolving moderately fast for twenty-four hours, there being six or eight of these casks, and close by each were 700 pounds more, ready for another charge. From the glazing mill the powder is taken to the drying house. Here, at the time of my visit, were nearly four tons of powder, spread out on mate its value at no less than $8,000,000, or trays, while close by were two furnaces roaring away at the rate of a ton of coal each in twenty four hours. Danger there was not, yet I could not but think of Sebastopol and the devil so long, was to be rich! to be a king! to be able to carry into execution all the darling powder is taken to the packing house, where it story of its mines. From the drying house the powder is taken to the packing house, where it is put in barrels or canisters, and thence taken to a magazine, of which there are several, case of explosion as the grinding mills. While standing in one of the packing hou and just as I had given a kick to a hundred pound keg of powder, intended for his excel-lency Santa Ana, Mr. Dupont called to a man to bring him some powder in a scoop shovel, and therein I inspected about half a peck of them down to the creek, ate them with fine powder, destined to knock out of this world per grass growing alongside of a spring. I some enemy of his said excellency. The untract back to the rock and staid there till three concern with which this was handed me, as miles off. The folks wanted to know what was that carelessness is customary or allowed, nor got lost in chasing him. The next morning I act, its noticeable feature arising rather from found that my horse had been stolen. I bought the bent of my own mind. On the contrary, those who ought to know, than it it is in the army or navy. This with a system of liberal rewards for long and faithful service, and for acts of bravery, in cases of danger, has so lessened the liability to accidents of a dangerous nature, that the proprietors feel perfectly safe,

Bill for Injunction. In the Circuit Court in the District of Columbia, sitting in Chan-

Christopher Adams, complainant,

James Guthrie, Amos Adams, Isaac N. Comstock, Defendants. Samuel Byington, and Richard Wallach.

THIS bill of complaint in the above stated causstates, that the said complainant, on or about the twenty-fifth day of November, A. D., 1851, entered into a contract with the United States government, agreeing to supply the government with five million of brick for the extension of the Capitol. That said complainant, on or about the 12th day of January. A. D. 1852, assigned to one Samuel Strong. the said contract; the said Strong agreeing and the said contract; the said Strong agreeing and promising to pay to said complainant the sum of four thousand dollars.

The bill further states that the said Strong, on or about the 2d day of February, A. D. 1852, assigned the said contract, or one moiety thereof, to Amos Adams and Isaac N. Comstock, of the city of Albany and State of New York, and received from the said Adams and Comstock their obligation or promise for the payment of four thousand dollars, or thereabout, as well as a lien of thirty per cent. on the moneys to be paid by the government on said contract, until the said sum of four thousand dol'ars should be paid; which lien said Strong duly assigned to the complainant in this bill. The bill further states that sometime in the year 1852 signed their right, title, and interest in the contract to one Samuel Byington as partner and associate of Richard Wallach, the said Byington and Wal lach having notice of the said lien of thirty per cent, on the moneys to be paid by the governm

n said contract. The object of said bill is to obtain an injunction Guthrie, and all persons acting for him, from paying the said moneys to any of the defendants, or their representatives, and the defendants, or their representatives, and the defendants. ants and their representatives, and the defend-ants and their representatives from receiving the said moneys until the sum of thirty-six hun-dred dollars, and the interest thereon, should be paid to the complainant or his legal representa-tives, and such other and further decree as to this court shall seem right and proper. The said Amos Adams and the said Isaac N. Comstock, named in the caption and body of the bill, still residing in Albany as aforesaid, beyond the reach of the pr cess of the court.

It is, therefore, by the court ordered this 1st day of January, A. D. 1855, that the matters and things stated in the aforesaid bill of complaint against the defendants, shall be taken for conessed against the said Amos Adams and Isaac N. Comstock, and such decree made in the pre-mises against them, and each of them, as the court shall deem right, unless the said defendant appear in the court on or before the second Mor day in May next, and answer the said bill, and show cause if any they have why a decree as prayed for by the complainant should not be assed by the court.

Provided the complainant cause this order, and the substance and the object of the said bill of complaint, to be published in some newspaper in the city of Washington, twice a week for six successive weeks, the first insertion thereof to appear at least four months before the second Monday in May next. Given at rules, the first Monday of January 1855, being the first day of January, 1855.

PAPER MOISTENER.—A new invention for mois Paper Moistener.—A new invention for mois-ening postage stamps, envelopes, sheets in a copying book, counting bank bills, &c. The common way of moistening stamps with the tongue is very disagreeable and inconvenient; also the usual way of wetting sheets in a copying book, by using a brush which has to be dipped in water, is inconvenient and very difficult to give paper an even moisture, which is very desirable for copying letters. This article obviates these difficulties, besides being useful for various other purposes. It is also perfectly simple and cheap, and must come into general use.—[Boston Post, Sept., 1854.
